

Could the World Scout Jamboree Be for You?

The World Scout Jamboree is a once-in-a-lifetime adventure, with tens of thousands of Scouts from all over the world. It's about making new friends, trying new things, learning about different cultures, and discovering what you're capable of.

But it's also a big commitment. It takes time, energy, and a willingness to step outside your comfort zone. This experience isn't right for everyone, and that's okay. There are lots of other amazing opportunities in Scouting, too.

This description is here to help you decide if applying for the Jamboree is something you'd enjoy and grow from.

What Kind of Young People Are We Looking For?

There's no such thing as a "perfect" Jamboree participant. We're not looking for the loudest, the most confident, or the most experienced. We're looking for a mix of people who are ready to:

- Be part of a team – listen, support others, and work together
- Try new things – even if they feel a bit scary at first
- Be open-minded – meet people from different backgrounds and cultures
- Get stuck in – whether it's cooking dinner, putting up tents, or joining in activities
- Grow – learn about yourself, challenge yourself, and come back with stories to tell

You don't need to have done anything like this before. You just need to be up for the journey.

What You'll Be Expected to Do

If you're selected, you'll be part of a Unit with other young people from your area. You'll:

- Take part in training weekends and team-building activities
- Help fundraise for your place and support others in doing the same
- Represent your community and the UK at an international event
- Be ready to learn, laugh, and maybe even get a bit muddy!

Commented [HK1]: Do these align with the learning objectives? If you don't have access to these, I can find a link for later

Commented [ST2R1]: No these were ones I thought would be a good starting point, I don't think I have access to the learning objectives so if you can bring them up later that would be amazing.

Still Not Sure?

That's okay. Talk to your leaders, your family, or someone who's been to a Jamboree before. Ask questions. Think about what excites you and what worries you. This might be the right adventure for you, or it might not be. Either way, there's something in Scouting for everyone.
